BISAC: JUVENILE FICTION / Family - Siblings

It's not easy for Claudio to be a big brother. He can't understand why his newborn sister cries in the middle of the night waking everyone up. But as he talks to the adults around him—teachers and parents—he learns that babies cry for a reason, and that he can help his little sister and his parents! This book is ideal for children to comment and share the everyday new experiences with their new siblings. A heartwarming story for new big brothers and sisters.

Claudio wants to have a big brother who can defend him in school, just like his friends Gabi and Pedro. But when he realizes that is not possible, he decides to become a big brother instead. This heart-warming story will help readers reflect on their own relationship with their younger siblings. Do they feel like protective heroes over them or do they feel that their space has been invaded?
