Sophia's family finally finds the perfect couch. The caveat: it comes with a mysterious creature that just won't leave. The family tries to get rid of it, but none of their desperate methods work. Then, they also find the perfect chair at a garage sale, and it too comes with a surprise. A hilarious tale that hinges on this wild, silent creature and all the things that come with it. This fun book will become a popular read-aloud.

Mia is bored. She wants to play with her big brother, but he is not interested. He would rather continue climbing that tall tree. But never underestimate the power of a little sister with a big imagination. Her make-believe scenarios are so good that her big brother can't resist. The two siblings end up spending the day climbing a mountain, sailing the seas, and opening a treasure chest. Lively illustrations detail the beauty of imaginative play.

A badger looks at his next meal of apples, roots, and worms, and complains: "I want a fancy meal!" He tries to catch a mole for a "mole taco", but he is too slow. His "mouse burger" and "rabbit split" also outrun him. When he comes back home to his good old meal, a bitter surprise awaits him. This humorous tale teaches children to appreciate what they have.
